COURSE DESCRIPTION AND OBJECTIVES:
Numerous benefits, besides enjoyment, ensue from the reading of fiction, as evidenced by research in psychology. Some of these include enhanced cognitive performance, greater empathy, a richer vocabulary, and increased pro-social behaviour. Hence reading fiction is good for you. But to reap the benefits one must be able to read productively, and reading complex texts requires skills beyond word recognition and plot comprehension. In this course students will master the tools required for skilful reading. The course begins with a review of some prominent communication theories. In the remainder of the course, students are exposed to a range of genre-specific conventions and strategies, which we then examine in a variety of acclaimed Spanish and Latin American intermediate-level texts. These include fictional and non-fictional genres: journalistic prose, poems, short stories, and plays. In an interactive work environment, students will have ample opportunity to practice the tools learned in class.

By the end of the course, students will notice a marked improvement in all levels of their Spanish language communication, a deeper understanding of the craft of good fiction, and greater confidence in their analytical skills. They will be ready to master senior literature and culture courses, and hopefully, to delve into exciting reading adventures in the future.
TEXTS: (all texts are in the public domain; PDFs available in e-class).

COURSE REQUIREMENTS
Analytical Assignments: (4 X 15) - 60% (Sept. 22, Oct. 2, Nov. 28, Dec. 6)
Final Exam - 30% (Dec. 20, 9:00 a.m.)
Class Participation - 10%
100%

ANALYTICAL ASSIGNMENTS
Practice is the key to mastering textual analytical skills. Four practice assignments on each of the four units have been designed to: a) reinforce the genre-specific concepts and analytical tools learned in class, and b) develop vocabulary and written communication, in particular the ability to articulate complex ideas. A list of eligible works, assignment specifications, and evaluation criteria are available in e-class. Assignments may be written in point form. Please provide a cover page.
FINAL EXAM
The final exam is cumulative and will focus on the theory and concepts learned in class. Exam preparation will be provided in class.

CLASS PARTICIPATION
Attendance to class is not included in the class participation component of the grade; only active, positive contributions to class discussions will count. To obtain the full 10%, students must contribute to every class, thus absences will reduce class participation opportunities. Given the interactive nature of this course, students are expected to think about the readings, take notes at home (following the assignment topics sheet to prepare the readings is highly recommended), and make consistent, positive oral contributions in class. Disruptive or disrespectful behavior will lead to a reduction in the class participation grade (e.g., sustaining conversations with classmates while instructor and/or other students are talking).

E-MAIL POLICY
Students are encouraged to ask their questions during class, and to discuss concerns during the instructor’s office hours. Please note that although all e-mails will be acknowledged, if questions are asked for which answers are available in the course syllable or e-class materials, students will be referred back to those materials.

Grading:
Assessment of the individual course components may be in the form of numerical marks or letter grades. The final letter grade will be based on "a combination of absolute achievement and relative performance in a class" (University Calendar, Evaluation Procedures and Grading System). The University Grading Procedure mandates that "a student’s level of achievement of the goals/outcomes of a course, their grade, and the descriptor of that grade must be aligned" (https://policiesonline.ualberta.ca/). The following guidelines have been adopted by the Department of Modern Languages and Cultural Studies:
“MLCS Undergraduate Grading Scale”

Required Notes:

“Policy about course outlines can be found in the Evaluation Procedures and Grading System of the University Calendar.”

Academic Integrity:

“The University of Alberta is committed to the highest standards of academic integrity and honesty. Students are expected to be familiar with these standards regarding academic honesty and to uphold the policies of the University in this respect. Students are particularly urged to familiarize themselves with the provisions of the Code of Student Behaviour (online at www.governance.ualberta.ca) and avoid any behaviour which could potentially result in suspicions of cheating, plagiarism, misrepresentation of facts and/or participation in an offence. Academic dishonesty is a serious offence and can result in suspension or expulsion from the University.”

Learning and Working Environment:
The Faculty of Arts is committed to ensuring all students; faculty and staff are able to study and work in an environment safe and free of discrimination and harassment. It does not tolerate behaviour that undermines that environment. The Department urges anyone who feels this policy has been or is being violated to:

- Discuss the matter with the person whose behaviour is causing concern; or
If that discussion is unsatisfactory, or there is concern that directs discussion is inappropriate or threatening, discuss it with the Chair of the Department.

For additional advice or assistance regarding this policy you may contact the Office of the Student Ombuds. Information about the University of Alberta Discrimination and Harassment Policy and Procedures is described in UAPPOL.

Academic Honesty:

All students should consult the information provided by the Student Conduct & Accountability Office regarding avoiding cheating and plagiarism in particular and academic dishonesty in general (see the Academic Integrity Undergraduate Handbook and Information for Students). If in doubt about what is permitted in this class, ask the instructor.

Students involved in language courses and translation courses should be aware that on-line “translation engines” produce very dubious and unreliable “translations.” Students in languages courses should be aware that, while seeking the advice of native or expert speakers is often helpful, excessive editorial and creative help in assignments is considered a form of “cheating” that violates the code of student conduct with dire consequences.

An instructor or coordinator who is convinced that a student has handed in work that he or she could not possibly reproduce without outside assistance is obliged, out of consideration of fairness to other students, to report the case to the Associate Dean of the Faculty. See the Academic Discipline Process.

Recording of Lectures:

Audio or video recording, digital or otherwise, of lectures, labs, seminars or any other teaching environment by students is allowed only with the prior written consent of the instructor or as a part of an approved accommodation plan. Student or instructor content, digital or otherwise, created and/or used within the context of the course is to be used solely for personal study, and is not to be used or distributed for any other purpose without prior written consent from the content author(s).

Attendance, Absences, and Missed Grade Components:

Regular attendance is essential for optimal performance in any course. In cases of potentially excusable absences due to illness or domestic affliction, notify your instructor by e-mail within two days. Regarding absences that may be excusable and procedures for addressing course components missed as a result, consult sections Attendance and Examinations of the University Calendar. Be aware that unexcused absences will result in partial or total loss of the grade for the “attendance and participation” component(s) of a course, as well as for any assignments that are not handed-in or completed as a result.

Student Accessibility Services:

If you have special needs that could affect your performance in this class, please inform your instructor during the first week of the term so that appropriate arrangements can be made. If you are not already registered with Student Accessibility Services, contact their office immediately (1-80 SUB; Email sasrec@ualberta.ca; Email; phone 780-492-3381).
